

SHORT BIOGRAPHY

Steve Pavlovich is the Entomologist for Mosquito Control Services (a Vector Disease Control International Company) where he has worked for the past 24 years. Steve attended Miami University and received his Bachelor of Science degree from Bowling Green State University. While working as a Mosquito Biologist in Toledo, Ohio, he continued his education at BGSU and received his Master of Science specializing in Mosquito Entomology. His thesis and graduate research focused on the Biology of “The Yellow Fever” and “Asian Tiger Mosquito”. Steve holds Pest Control and Mosquito Control licenses in Florida, Mississippi, Georgia, Alabama, and Louisiana and is a member of multiple professional organizations. He currently serves on the Past President of the Georgia Mosquito Control Board of Directors and has presented at numerous Mosquito/ Pest Control Conferences during his tenure.